SUICIDE TRAGEDY IN LINDBERGH CRIME-HUNT

BRITAIN IN WORLD CRISIS

EMBARRASSING CONFIDENCE

REVIEW BY THE CHANCELLOR

BEST IN STORM

London, June 10.
That Britain is showing by far the happier position in the intensifying world depression and that the Government will not hesitate to reduce national expenditure still further, even if it involves a lowering of the standard of living, should the necessity arise, were among the principal points brought out in an important speech by Mr. Neville Chamberlain in the House of Commons last night.

The Chancellor of Exchequer was winding up the debate on the third reading of the Finance Bill, which was passed by 409 votes to 34, and gave a masterly review of the financial situation at home and abroad. The difficulties at present being encountered, Mr. Chamberlain said, were common to every country and were not going to be solved in any Finance Bill introduced in this country alone. Co-operation between nations was necessary and, indeed, was the only way in which a solution of prevailing problems could ultimately be found. Referring to debt charges and the prospects of undertaking a conversion operation, he said that when the Government considered circumstances favourable they would do so.

BALANCED JUDGMENT.

Dealing with the general outlook, he said some feelings of uneasiness which did not seem to be well founded had arisen. He deprecated both optimism and undue pessimism and hoped the House of Commons would keep a balanced judgment. It was futile to base any estimate from the income tax revenue and surplus on figures of April and May, or to base any calculation for the whole year upon what had happened in the first two months, but he had no reason to expect there would be any appreciable shortfall in the yield of inland revenue, including stamp and death duties, as well as income tax and surtax.

They had no experience on which to make any reliable calculation of the yield of the Import Duties. Any estimate must to a large extent be conjectural. The latest figures of unemployment were to some extent disappointing.

MORE CONFIDENCE.

Comparing the existing situation with that prevailing before the first National Government took office, he said they had got to a position at which confidence had been restored in the eyes of the British people and in those of the world. It had come about to almost an embarrassing extent. The figures of unemployment, which had been rising in 1929 and 1930, had been checked. The Stock Exchange price of three and half per cent. Conversion Loan last August stood at 77½/8; to-day at 88.

If Britain's position was compared with that of other countries, there was a good deal of ground for encouragement.

The trend of trade during the January-April period, as compared with the corresponding period of 1931, showed that the percentage of fall in imports in the United Kingdom was twelve per cent., but the United States suffered a fall of thirty per cent., France thirty-five, and Germany thirty-six.

SUSPECTED MAID TAKES LIFE

FATAL POISON DOSE AT MRS. MORROW'S HOME

SCOTLAND YARD AGAIN ASKED TO AID

SISTER SOUGHT

NEW YORK, JUNE 10.
THE RIGOROUS HUNT FOR THE MURDERERS OF THE LINDBERGH BABY HAS LED TO ANOTHER TRAGEDY. THE SUICIDE OF A MAID EMPLOYED AT THE HOME OF MRS. DWIGHT MORROW, THE MOTHER-IN-LAW OF COLONEL LINDBERGH, AT THE TIME OF THE KIDNAPING.

Police believe that they have secured a definite line to the criminals and the quest has again extended to Great Britain, while a warrant has been issued for the arrest of a notorious American gangster. Scotland Yard has been requested to assist the American police in tracing a sister of the dead woman, who left for England soon after the kidnapping.

To-day's tragedy was discovered by Mrs. Morrow's butler, the body of the dead girl being found in the pantry.

She was a single girl named Violet Sharp and had been in Mrs. Morrow's employment for some time. She committed suicide by taking poison.

RANSOM PAYMENT COINCIDENCE

The tragedy occurred at the New Jersey home of Mrs. Morrow near Hackensack, where the baby son of Colonel Lindbergh is presently being held.

Charles Augustus Junior was in fact at his grandmother's home only a day or two before going to Hopewell to suffer his terrible fate.

POLICE INTEREST.

The police have been interested in Miss Violet Sharp for some time past. They had already examined her on three occasions since the kidnapping and it is believed that it was the knowledge that Colonel Schwarzkopf's men proposed to subject her to further close questioning to-day that led her to take her own life.

Col. Schwarzkopf.

It was when the police arrived and asked for her that the tragedy was discovered.

CURIOUS COINCIDENCE.

When further investigations were made regarding the affair, the police admitted that they had definite reasons for suspecting Miss Sharp.

The New Jersey police told reporters at Englewood that Miss Edith Sharp, a sister of the dead maid, left for England four days after Dr. Condon, the eccentric schoolmaster who claims to have been in contact with the real kidnappers, had handed over $50,000 to a mysterious intermediary at a sequestered corner of a Bronx Cemetery.

That fact was in itself rather suspicious, and Colonel Schwarzkopf, who is in charge of the New Jersey investigations regarding the Lindbergh child murder, issued a statement declaring that the suicide of the maid tended to confirm the suspicions of the investigating authorities that she had guilty knowledge of the kidnapping even if she did not take an actual part.

The police have now requested Scotland Yard to trace the whereabouts of Miss Edith Sharp and question her regarding the crime. The sisters are believed by the police to be English although this is not definitely known to be true.

SUSPICION AROUSED.

It is understood that suspicion of Miss Violet Sharp, the dead woman, was aroused by her conflicting statements regarding her whereabouts on the night of the kidnapping.

Yesterday she identified a photograph of Ernest Brinkert, her male companion on the night of the kidnapping and the arrest of Brinkert, who has a notorious criminal record, has been ordered.

MRS. MORROW'S BELIEF.
Mrs. Morrow has issued a statement from Englewood declaring her belief that both Miss Violet and Miss Edith Sharp were innocent of complicity in the terrible outrage.—Reuter.

DOLLAR STILL UNCHANGED

LOCAL MARKET LIFELESS

The Hongkong dollar remains unchanged at 1s. 3½/8d. to-day. Locally, the market is still lifeless.

In London, silver is down 1/16th spot and 1/8th forward. China bought and sold, and there was small business, the market closing quietly steady. After the official fixing, the market ruled idle.

In New York, silver has declined 1/16th, the market being dull.

TREASURE HUNT ON SUNKEN "EGYPT" SUCCEEDS PACKET OF RUPEE NOTES THE FIRST FIND

Brest, June 10.
After years of disappointments, the destruction of one salvage ship by an explosion, and remarkable patience and perseverance, Italian divers from the salvage-ship Artiglio II have succeeded in penetrating the treasure room of the sunken P. and O. liner Egypt.

It is over three years ago since an Italian salvage company, scouring the seas in the vicinity of Brest, located the Egypt, which was rammed and sunk in a collision in 1922 with over £1,000,000 in gold and silver bullion aboard. The modern treasure hunt, rivalling in adventure and audacity the tales of pirate gold, of wresting a fortune from the dark depths of the ocean, immediately began.

TWO SHIPS LOST.

Two of the original salvage ships, have been lost, together with a number of lives, in one of the most hazardous tasks ever attempted. The first, was destroyed in a violent gale, the second by an explosion aboard the Egypt of which the Artiglio received the greater force.

The perseverance and deliberate methods of the treasure seekers have been vindicated, after divers had been constantly engaged in painstakingly cutting and blasting their way straight down through the Egypt's hull to the bullion room.

CEILING BLOWN IN.

The ceiling of the strong-room was blown out yesterday by means of a chain of bombs which was placed in position by four divers.

A case containing a packet of notes to the value of fifteen thousand rupees was the first article recovered from the treasure room. The work is now proceeding and all the valuables are expected to have been removed within a few days.—Reuter.

EUGENE CHEN'S FUTURE

ly, carrying Perry to 7-5 in the first set and 8-6 in the second. He was outplayed in the third.

Scores:

H. G. N. Lee (Britain) beat M. Stolarow (Poland), 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.
F. J. Perry (Britain) beat Tloczynski (Poland), 7-5, 8-6, 6-2.

Assuming, safely, that Britain wins another match at Warsaw, they will meet the winners of Germany v. Ireland tie in the semi-final.

JAPAN THROUGH.
Japan have also qualified for the semi-final, winning their third straight match against Denmark to-day. They will meet Italy. The United States, of course, will compete in the Inter-Zone Final in July. They today won their third match against Brazil.—Reuter.

DAVIS CUP

Perry and Lee Succeed

Almost Reach the Semi-Final

London, June 10.

Britain's appearance in the semi-final of the Davis Cup, European Zone, was practically assured to-day when H.G.N. Lee and F.J. Perry won the first two singles matches against Poland at Warsaw.

Max Stolarow was no match for H.G.N. Lee, who won comfortably in straight sets, while the Polish No. 1, Tloczynski, gave Perry a spirited contest without succeeding in extending the battle beyond three sets.

Excellent Good Humour

BUT NO IRISH AGREEMENT

London, June 10.

Consultations between the representatives of the British and Irish Free State Governments which were begun in Dublin on Tuesday and concluded in London to-day, failed to resolve the difficulties which have arisen regarding the negotiations connected with the Ottawa Economic Conference.

A communique issued after the conference which dispersed at about 5 o'clock, follows:

"A meeting took place between the President and Vice-President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State Mr. De Valera and Mr. Sean O'Kelly, the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Lord President of the Council, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Home Secretary, Sir Herbert Samuel, the Dominions Secretary, Mr. J. H. Thomas and the Minister of War, Lord Hallahan, at No. 10, Downing Street at 11.30 a.m.

"The meeting was adjourned at 1.30 p.m. and resumed one hour later. There was a prolonged discussion of the points at issue, but it was not found possible to reach an agreement."

"Don't be a wasfer. Cultivate the saving grace."—Slogan by Mr. Lok Kam-kee.

NOT SURPRISING.

In view of the attitude adopted by Mr. de Valera and the Ministers on the Oath of Allegiance Bill, now before the Free State Legislature, the failure of the Conference has caused very little surprise in political circles here.

The Dominions Secretary was present at Euston Station later when Mr. de Valera left on his return to Dublin. Mr. Thomas told the Press that the conference had passed off quietly and that the questions before them were discussed with excellent good humour.—British Wireless.

BRITAIN FAIL AGAIN

HAVERS FLATTERS TO DECEIVE

TWO AMERICANS LEAD FIELD

London, June 10.
Arthur Havers flatters only to deceive in the British Open Golf Championship at Sandwich, and finally, the championship having already been deservedly won by Gene Sarazen, Havers was beaten out of second place by another American, MacDonald Smith, who had a great day, aggregating 71 in the third round and 70 in the fourth.

Havers's third round broke the record for the course, and he went out for the fourth needing a 69 to win the championship. The result was, however, practically assured by the time he had completed the eighth hole, up to which point he had taken 33. He could not improve on this form over the remainder of the course and finally took 76, his worst round of the tournament.

FINAL LEADERS.

The next nearest British player, Charles Whitcombe, captain of the Ryder Cup team last year, was nine strokes behind Gene Sarazen, four behind MacDonald Smith and three behind Havers.

The leading final scores were:

G. Sarazen	70 69 70 74=283
MacDonald Smith	71 70 71 70=282
A. Havers	74 71 68 76=289
C. Whitcombe	71 73 73 75=292
P. Alliss	71 71 73 72=292
Padgham	76 72 74 70=292

Tommy Armour, the holder of the championship, occupied seventeenth place in the list, being equal 300 with several other competitors.

BEST AMATEUR.

The best score returned by an amateur was credited to W. L. Hope, the international, who spoiled himself with a bad second round. His scores were 74, 79, 76, 71, making a total of 299.

The Prince of Wales attended the championship to-day and curiously enough chose to follow Arthur Havers when he was making the best individual round of the tournament. He took 33 up to the turn—4 4 2 4 3 4 4 4—and 35 coming home—3 4 4 4 4 3 4 5 4.

Sarazen's aggregate of 283 is a record for the championship, the previous best being that of Bobby Jones, who returned 285 at St. Andrews in 1927.—Reuter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

Secretary, American Bridge League.

The bidding locates the missing high cards for the declarer in the following hand. In order to make his contract successfully, he must create an entry in dummy.

♠ 4-3	♠ 8-5-2
♥ 7-6-4	♥ 10-5-2
♦ 2	♦ J-10-3
♣ A-J-10-8-6-3-2	♣ 9-7-6-4
♠ A-K-Q-J-10	♠ 9-7-6
♥ A-Q-J-8-3	♥ K-9
♦ K-Q-7	♦ A-9-8-6-5-4
♣ None	♣ K-Q

The Bidding.

The hand was played at contract and South the dealer opened with one diamond. West made an in-formatory double. North, with the knowledge that his partner holds two and one-half high card tricks, jumps the bid to four clubs. A pre-emptive bid—hoping to stop the opponents from arriving at the correct declaration. East passed and South passed. West bid four spades which North and East passed. South went to five clubs trying for a sacrifice bid. West might be justified in showing his heart suit, but preferred to conceal it and bid five spades which bought the contract.

The Play.

North has the opening lead and opens the deuce of diamonds—his partner's suit. Before playing to the trick West, the declarer, must try to get a reading on the South hand. In order to have an opening bid, South probably holds the ace of diamonds, the king of hearts, and either the king and queen of clubs or the ace of clubs. The declarer can easily read that the deuce of diamonds is a singleton. The diamond will be returned and ruffed, which will be two tricks lost for the declarer. He must find the king of hearts in the South hand to make his contract and at the same time create an entry in dummy.

Therefore the 10 of diamonds is played from dummy to force the ace from the South hand. When South plays the ace, declarer drops the king, but South returns the nine of diamonds and if West plays small, he will be unable to make his contract. Even though he knows the diamond is going to be ruffed, he must play the queen in order to create an entry into dummy. North ruffs with the three of spades and dummy plays the three of diamonds. The ace of clubs is returned by North, West trumping with the 10 of spades. Three rounds of spades are led which pick up all of the opponents' trump.

By unblocking with the king and queen of diamonds, the declarer is now able to get into the dummy by returning the seven of diamonds which dummy wins with the jack. The 10 of hearts is led from dummy, South covers with the king, declarer wins with the ace and returns the queen of hearts, picking up the nine in the South hand. The three hearts and the jack of spades are all good in the declarer's hand and he has made his contract of five spades.

If the declarer had failed to drop his king and queen of diamonds on the first two tricks, retaining the seven for a re-entry, he would have been forced to lead away from the ace queen of hearts and would necessarily have lost another trick.

nan HUNTER

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Susan Carey, is not pretty, disconcerts the attention of a moody young man, the Lamp-man. She is charmed by the friendly of Robert Dunbar, young millionaire who attends the same downtown shorthand school as Susan. Dunbar comforts her one day when she runs away from a would-be employer, who becomes affectionate.

Ernest Heath, architect, employs Susan as a temporary secretary. She is delighted at the thought of securing her first job. Mrs.
Milton, a friend, upbraids Susan and all modern girls because of their insistence on entering business.

CHAPTER VII

A throaty voice challenged Susan next day as she sat alone in the small outer office. Looking up, she met the exaggeratedly long lashed eyes of a small blonde girl in a skin tight frock of violent green.

Girl, frock, makeup, all were calculated to arrest the eye of the beholder. Susan frankly stared.
The blonde hair was a tumbled mass of ringlets (a "permanent" of dubious origin). A heavy, penetrating perfume emanated from the small person of the newcomer like a tangible essence.

In the same husky mid-contralto
the stranger continued. "Gotta sheet of carbon around that isn't workin'? I've just worn out my last one and I've gotta leave to make out in duplicate."

Susan smiled. Now she knew where she had seen that dandelion head before! Bending over the typewriter in the office across the way.

She rose to get the carbon sheet,
hoping as she did so that if Mr.
Heath happened in he would not mind this artless interchange of courtesies.

"Thanks a lot!" The yellow haired girl fluttered her mascaraed lashes. "Do somethin' for you some day. My name's Flannery—Ray."

She gestured to the door across the hall, lettered blackly,
"Mayne and Mayne, Real Estate."

"Have lunch with me some day," she offered hospitably. "Tie on the nose bag together. Know a good place down on Adams street."

Susan said "All right" and the Flannery girl was gone as swiftly and suddenly as she had appeared.

For the next few days Susan was too busy learning the routine of the new office, finding out where supplies were kept, typing Mr.
Heath's scholarly letters and reports and shyly asking questions of the rather crabbed young bookkeeper to make any overtures of friendship toward Ray Flannery.

Work was absorbing, Susan found.
Her employer was courteous although inclined to be a bit stiff and dictatorial. Altogether the days were full.

The girl felt important and for the first time really grown up.
Even Aunt Jessie treated her now with a grudging respect.

On the second Monday the chrysanthemum-locked Miss Flannery appeared again. Susan was just leaving, properly hatted and gloved, for lunch at the exact moment the Flannery girl emerged from the door of her office.

"Hello!" Raspberry tinted lips parted in a smile which flashed dazzlingly like that of the beauties of the toothpaste advertisements.

Susan smiled shyly in return.

Ray Flannery was dressed this day in a shade of yellow even more startling than that of her amazing hair. The dress, even as the green one, fitted her rounded figure with utter frankness. She wore black and white shoes that thrust for attention. Her sunny black straw hat, coquettishly tilted, was adorned with a knot of waxen
gardenias.

"Eating alone?" inquired the vision, casually linking her arm in Susan's. Instantly (Susan did not know quite how it came about) it was arranged that the two girls should lunch together.

Over their combination sandwiches and chocolate malted milk,
Susan discovered (a) that Ray Flannery had wanted to be a tap dancer, had once won a dancing contest, and longed to be on Broadway; (b) that she lived with her mother and brother in the Wilson avenue district; (c) that the boys were all crazy about her, though she didn't know why; (d) that she liked Susan.

"I'm like that," Ray confided art-lessly. "First thing I can always tell whether I like a person or not.
That crab who worked at Heath's before you came—what did you say her name was, Sullivan? O'Brien?
—well, anyway, she was a pain.
Couldn't stand her. Always wore low heeled shoes and hair nets.
Can you beat it? Hair nets!
Musta come out of the ark."

Susan murmured that the luck-less woman had undergone an operation and might return to her post shortly.

"I hope she chokes!" Ray Flannery said cheerfully, disposing of the last bit of sandwich. Ray's finger-nails were so long and so brightly tinted her companion could not stop looking at them.

She rambled on. "My boy friend gave her a look one night when he came for me and he says,
'Holy cat,' he says. 'Who did she drop from? Who dragged her in?'
he says. I thought I'd die!"

Ray gave Susan a sly, penetrating look.

"What's your boy friend's name?" she asked.

Susan coloured, stammering that she had none. The Flannery girl shrugged unbelieving shoulders.
She seemed offended.

"Don't tell if you don't want to,"
she said elegantly. "Some people are funny that way. As Mom always says to me, 'You blab everything right out,' she says. And I do. Friendly like a pup, that's me."

Susan hastened to mend the breach. "Honestly, I haven't got one," she insisted, baring her shame to make the Flannery girl's icy manner thaw.

Ray still looked mildly incredulous but she dropped the chilly dignity in which she had a moment before enveloped herself.

"I don't believe it!" She eyed the other girl suspiciously, took in the crisp, dark waves of hair pressed down by the small white hat, the peachblow colour that came and went in Susan's round cheeks.

Susan laughed gayly. "It's a fact!" she cried. "The other girl's attitude cheered her. She couldn't be so bad, after all!"

Ray Flannery gave her rosebud month an extra coating of lip salve, and looked up.

"Maybe you haven't got S. A.," she murmured thoughtfully. "You seem real cute looking to me but maybe that's it. Ever try purple eyeshadow?" She proffered the pencil she was now employing on her upper lids.

Susan drew back and then, anxious not to wound the sensitive Miss Flannery again, said with a regret she did not feel, "Wish I could but my aunt's terribly strict —and old-fashioned. She wouldn't stand for it."

Ray sniffed. "You poor kid!
Well, I guess maybe you'd better stay the way you are as long as you work for old Sourbones Heath.
He's a fussbudget, I hear. Looks at me as if I was dirt when I meet him in the elevator. He's a Yale man, my boss says." Ray shook her head as if that accounted for Ernest Heath's strange ways.

"Is he?" asked Susan rather eagerly. "I didn't know that."

"You're a queer one," Ray Flannery remarked, raising her plucked eyebrows. "Why don't you pump Pierson? He'll give you the dirt."

"Pump him?" Susan went scarlet and then smiled. It was no use trying to explain herself to this girl. Already Ray was rambling on.

"You won't need to do any pumping when Jack Waring gets back to town. He's a good number.
He'll put you wise."

"Jack Waring?" Susan was puzzled.

Ray's lips curled into an insinuating sort of smile. "Ye-es, Jack Waring," she mocked. "Heath's assistant. Don't say I didn't warn you!" The two girls had reached the elevator now and wedged tightly into the crowded car. Ray could say no more.

The following day Susan was initiated into the mysteries of copying a freshly typed letter concerning an important building estimate into the old-fashioned book which Mr. Heath insisted on keeping, not entirely trusting to modern files.

The quiet, rather sulky Pierson showed her how it was done. The cloth must be wrung out just so, the transparent sheet adjusted, the letter slipped into place and blotting papers carefully placed behind it. Then the whole book was swung into the press and an iron screw squeezed down.

The day was to come when Susan could follow this process in her sleep, so like mere child's play it was to become to her, but during this first bewildering and troubled week it seemed a gargantuan labour.

Further, she was rendered horribly nervous by the warnings and hints dropped by the lugubrious Pierson.
"The boss is mighty particular about this," he told her heavily.
"It has to be done exactly right.
The last girl we had here was fired because she gummed up the works proper."

Susan wet her lips nervously and frowned. Strange that at the ultra modern business school of Mr.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Magnificent scenery, picturesque costumes, and the enchanting architecture of the low, red-tiled adobe structures of the great South-west mark "The Gay Caballero," George O'Brien's latest Fox production showing to-day at the King's Theatre.

Especially significant is the reproduction of an actual Mexican cantina. Realizing that much of the charm of dramas dealing with out-door life and romance in the West depends upon the authenticity with which they are pictured, Alfred Werker, the director, exercised great care in presenting each scene with all possible realism.

The cantina in "The Gay Caballero" was modelled after the one described in Tom Gill's novel and originally standing in a little Mexican town just below the border. Open on one side, as all such desert buildings are, it is a rather large structure, through whose large and gracefully curved arches one has a view of the patio, the hitching racks and the stables beyond.

"The Gay Caballero" was adapted to the screen by Philip Klein and Darryl Connors. Others figuring prominently in the large cast are Willard Robertson, Martin Carralena and Juan Torrens.

Stage Hit Filled.

"Possessed," Joan Crawford's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, opening at the Queen's Theatre tomorrow is an adaptation of the successful Edgar Selwyn play, "The Miracle." Cluck Gable, who last scored opposite Greta Garbo in "Susan Lennox," has the leading male role.

The heroine of "Possessed," made famous by Florence Reed in the stage version, gives Miss Crawford a wide range of acting opportunities. She is seen as a factory worker who cannot reconcile herself to the poverty and drab existence of her class. Instead, she makes the most of her chance by going to New York, where she becomes intimate with Gable in the role of a young millionaire with political ambitions.

The love of Gable for Miss Crawford becomes a stumbling block when he aspires to become governor of his state. To render him free to execute a successful campaign, she consents to an engagement with a boy from her home town, whom she does not love. But when at the nominating convention her name is made the butt of heckling propaganda Miss Crawford resorts to more drastic measures, which results in a dramatic denouement of interesting consequences.

Wallace Ford, well-known New York stage leading man, makes his first appearance on the screen in this picture. The cast also includes Skeets Gallagher, Frank Conroy, Marjorie White, John Miljan and Clara Blandick.

"The Miracle Man."

"The Miracle Man" proved far more interesting to work on than the average picture because there is only one part in the entire production which may be called a straight role," said Director Norman McLeod recently. He points out the diversity of characters as follows:

Sylvia Sidney plays a girl crook, hardened against life, cynical and scheming, who changes under the spell of the Miracle Man. Chester Morris is a two-fisted, brutal leader of a gang of crooks, a scoundrel at anything good in life until his regeneration. Irving Pichel is seen as an atheist who defies the power of God until his own son is cured by a miracle.

John Wray, as The Frog, is an obvious character actor with his body twisted into grotesque shapes. Robert Coogan is a pitiful little crippled boy. Red Sparks appears as a "dusky" pickpocket. Hobart Bosworth is the beloved, kindly, religious faith healer. Boris Moroff has another of his weird character roles as the half-caste menace, Virginia Bruce, as a frail invalid, and Lloyd Hughes, as the millionaire brother, both have character parts. Florine McKinney, as the sweet daughter of Frank Darwin, the character of Frank Darwin, the character of hotel owner, has the lone straight part.

"The Miracle Man," famous as an outstanding silent, and now refilmed as a major vocal production comes to the King's Theatre beginning on Sunday. Sylvia Sidney and Chester Morris appear in the leading roles.

Air Photography Under Difficulties.

The snow and sleet experienced during filming operations seriously hampered the air work for Walter Summers' picture "The Flying Fool," now on its final screenings at the Queen's. Summer himself came alternative to film producing as a profession.

Buying and Selling—are the fundamental factors in business. Inefficiency or ineffectiveness in either may easily mean the difference between success or failure. This is why great commercial organisations employ specialists in these departments, and this is why newspaper space is carefully considered from the standpoint of buying. It is not merely a question of paying so much for the privilege of seeing goods advertised in a newspaper. To the keen buyer it is not a matter of paying for an unknown quantity, but the vital transaction of Buying Circulation—something which should be as definite as placing an order for so many gross of cigars or clocks. That is why the shrewd buyer of advertising thinks and buys in terms of quantity plus quality. But how to assess quantity in newspaper advertising? There is only one way, and that again is where the keen buyer justifies his reputation. He insists upon Certificates of Paid Sales prepared by Chartered Accountants. Both the South China Morning Post and The Hongkong Telegraph gladly supply this proof.

Another thing that will particularly impress you, when you drive one of these new cars is the almost unbelievable increase in smoothness and silence, as compared with earlier models and others, due to the virtual wiping out of motor vibration by the use of live rubber engine mountings and various other refinements made possible by painstaking attention to detail which has characterized all the work of Studebaker Engineers.

This grading up process has not been confined to the motor. Every other part of the car has been greatly improved.

THE GOLD STANDARD

Read in conjunction with hard facts, the final report of the League of Nations Gold Delegation, which claims that the gold standard remains the best available monetary mechanism, is likely to possess little more than academic interest. It is all very well to assert that the world's stocks of monetary gold are adequate to support the world's credit structure, but the fact remains that the gold standard has broken down. This is rightly attributed by the British representatives on the delegation to the maldistribution of supplies. We need only look at the number of countries which have now linked themselves to sterling to prove how unworkable the gold standard had become. It is one thing to assert that that standard would be adequate to world needs were it properly operated, but it is quite another matter when we are shown by experience that it has not discharged its functions along lines which command world approval.

Britain's interest in the matter is of much importance. Eventually she may go back to gold, but that time is certainly not yet. At the moment, any form of exchange stabilisation is open to the objection that indirectly it would link sterling to gold, and whilst this must be the ultimate aim, in the existing unsettled conditions it might be very undesirable to compel sterling prices to follow the vagaries of gold. But if the time for consideration of any definite plan of stabilisation has not yet arrived, the danger of progressive depreciation which always attaches to an unstable currency must be constantly borne in mind. It is therefore of vital importance, not only to Britain, but to the whole world, that sterling should achieve stability in terms of commodities, with the minimum of delay. Obviously, however, the return to the gold standard cannot be hurried, for, as a London banking authority has remarked, it would be folly to ignore the fact that in the conditions which have prevailed in recent years, the system has failed signally to achieve its principal objective, namely, stability of prices. It is clear that it would be extremely unwise for Britain to again link her currency to gold until there is a reasonable prospect that all countries adopting the system will agree to abide by rules, the non-observance of which has been mainly responsible for the present position. The view was expressed by a noted British banker some few months ago that any maintenance of the gold standard must rest, to a considerable extent, upon the final solution of the war debts and reparations problem, on a general adjustment in order to help international trade settlements so as to allow a sufficient flow of commodities from the one country to another, and on an understanding between creditor nations as to the methods to be adopted in the working of the standard. This, it will be noted, is also the view both of the majority and minority sections of the League's Gold Delegation.

Prior to the Great War, the gold standard was allowed to operate according to recognised principles, and gold movements were permitted to exercise their normal influence as adjusting factors upon the credit structures of the countries concerned. In those days, monetary gold was not regarded as a commodity for the settlement of international debts, but as an adjusting agent for the correction of unbalanced trade positions. The present breakdown has shown the necessity for a return to these broad principles, even if modern conditions may necessitate some modification of the system in detail. It is along these lines that reconstruction plans must be laid, but it is generally recognised that if they are to be successfully operated, a much greater degree of international co-operation will be required than has proved possible in recent years.

Linguistic Nationalism.

A prominent newspaper in Rome recently issued, in connection with a campaign to remove from the Italian language all foreign expressions, a list of fifty words which no patriotic Italian will be expected to use in future. Many of these are English. To read them over is quite a disturbing business for an Englishman. They cast doubt upon a legend of centuries. For it has always been assumed that the Englishman is a serious, studious, hard-working person, very different from the flighty, mercurial and pleasure-loving southern European. One would therefore expect such English words as have obtained a footing in Italian to be terms of philosophic import, the counters of earnest and weighty discussion upon the graver problems of the universe. But they are, in fact, nothing of the sort. Rather are they words of more frivolous import, like "dancing," "golf," "five o'clock" and "film." It is a fact to be commended to the study of those who draw up comparative tables of national and racial characteristics that when the sunny Mediterranean dweller wants expressions for amusement and sport it is to the Anglo-American tongue that he turns for help. For he probably will go on turning for help in this direction. It is unlikely that Italian will become purged of its English connexions. It is no easier for a country to be self-contained in the linguistic than in the economic sense. England herself found that out about the end of the nineteenth century. At that time the English people were told by learned professors that they should always use words of Teutonic origin, and avoid terms derived from the Latin tongues, among which, incidentally, is Italian. But it was quickly found that this sort of thing cramped the conversational style altogether too much. What, after all, would many people do with a car if there were no "chauffeur" to drive it, nor any "garage" in which to put it away? And how could one eat a meal in a restaurant if there were no "cher" to cook it? When the British people were asked to refer to the "impenetrability of matter" as the "ungothroughness of stuff" they not unnaturally declined. And so the Romance languages persist in influencing English. It is not unlikely that English will persist in influencing them.

FATAL MOTOR ACCIDENT

GIRL SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

A motor accident, attended with fatal consequences, occurred in Hennessy Road last night when a Chinese girl was knocked down by an unknown private motor car which is stated to have driven on without stopping after the mishap. According to a report issued by the police, the girl, Chan Lin-ho, aged seven, of 48, Hennessy Road, was knocked down by a motor car shortly after nine o'clock and sustained injuries to her head and right foot. It was not until midnight, however, that her condition was revealed to the police, who had her taken to the Government Civil Hospital, where she died almost immediately. Lieut. H. B. L. Davidson, of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, reports to the police that while driving his private car, 954, along Lai-chikok Road, near Nan-cheung Street, a lad named Ho Sam, aged 17, ran from the island in the centre of the road and was knocked down, receiving injuries to his arms and legs. He was later taken to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

BRITISH PUMPS.

A Growing Export Trade.

In 1931 the largest export order for petrol pumps ever placed in England was executed by the Hammond Pump & Equipment Co., whose works are at Acton.

During the early part of this year this firm exported various types of petrol pumps and air compressors to places as far apart as Yokohama, Athens, Bombay, Jamaica, Rangoon, Saigon and Hongkong.

CURRENT COMMENT

Anti-Fog Lamps.

It is noticed that a number of motorists have adopted the anti-fog lamp with the yellow lens, and those who have tested this device in foggy conditions speak well of it. It should be remembered however that the lamp should be affixed as low as possible on the off side, and not on the near side, as observed on a car recently on the Peak.

Controlling Speed.

The Repulse Bay Road carries heavy traffic during week-ends, and at times reckless driving on the part of some drivers is noticed. It was gratifying to see a Traffic Officer posted on one of the bends on Sunday afternoon, obviously on the look-out for careless drivers. This practice should go a long way in checking dangerous driving, for once it is generally known that any bend may reveal a Traffic Police Officer, speedsters are likely to take more precaution.

Norton Motor Cycles.

The success of the Norton machines in the 1932 Tourist Trophy Races being held this month on the famous Isle of Man Course, is a just tribute to these excellent two-wheeled mounts. Most motor cyclists are familiar with the Isle of Man events, which are recognised as the world's supreme test for riders and machines alike, when it is realised that at least one of the events this year was won at an average speed of over 70 m.p.h., this over an extremely hazardous road course, the perfection of the machine is emphasised. British motor cycles lead the world in the most impressive manner, in fact, there is not a trial in any part of the world now where they do not carry everything before them. Local riders, by their almost universal choice of British machines are merely following the world-wide rule; and wherever motor cycles are employed on public service, such as Police work etc. British mounts are invariably chosen. The Norton machines, which prompt this comment, are immensely popular in Hongkong, and the local agents, the Sincere Company, report a steadily increasing sales turnover as the month passes.

LINED UP FOR THE START AT BROOKLANDS.

Competitors ready for the start of the British Empire Trophy race at Brooklands. Nearest the camera is Mr. J. Cobb in his Delage car in which he crossed the line first. Next but one to him is Mr. G. E. T. Eyston (Panhard), who was declared the winner after a protest had been lodged to the stewards.

COMFORT IN THE CAR.

"Soft" Steering and Skids.

(By Chiltern in the News-Chronicle.)

There is no question that the road performance of most modern cars—whether they be 7 horse-power or 37 horse-power—is good, but it is questionable if the driver's comfort in receiving the same attention it received five or six years ago.

I am of average build and am fortunately able to stand the strain of long, non-stop drives. Non-stop runs of 200 miles have been frequent in cars that I have tested during the past few years. Driving strain has been so small in a few of these cars that I have felt fresh enough to do another 200 miles, but in the case of other cars, muscles and nerves were tired after 100 miles.

The difference was so pronounced that I began to compare the angle of the seats, the design of the control pedals, and the steering wheel column in relation to one another. I found slight changes compared with models of two and three years ago which may to some extent explain the driving stress. Another point I noticed was that few cars can be brought-out of a skid without difficulty.

Car or Roads?

After a run of 100 miles on one car, during which several tickish skids developed, I did the return journey over the same roads in similar weather in another car and found that skids worse than those encountered on the outward journey were easily corrected.

The two cars had about the same quality of low-centre of gravity; wheelbase and track were similar; and the total weights were practically equal. The only difference was that the car used on the outward journey had steering of a "low ratio" pattern, while the return journey car had fairly high ratio steering. In the last four or five years there has been a fashion for ultra "soft" or low ratio steering to counteract the greater resistance of lower pressure tyres.

The ideal of all roads being oon-skid will not come for many years; meanwhile, it is a question whether the fashion of low ratio steering has not gone a point too far.

Driving comfort might be tackled on different lines. A simple means of co-relating seats, pedal controls and the steering column must come. Front seats are nearly all adjustable now, but what is the good of that if the steering column cannot be moved as desired? Most columns seem to have been made for the man of 5ft. 6in. or 5ft. 6in., and the average driver, even with the seat forward to its limit, has to suffer the fatigue of outstretched arms, which is aggravated if the seat has a raked back.

I cannot see any great difficulty in fitting cheap cars with a sort of telescopic steering column and a seat with an adjustable back rake. A number of cars have adjustable pedal controls. To my mind they should be fixed bringing the driver and his seat as far forward as possible almost forcing him to have the largest possible angle of sight through the windscreen. It is these things which make the car feel "right" to the owner.

New Austin Four.

Recently I had a short run in the new Austin four-cylinder 10-h.p. saloon after a prolonged inspection of the chassis. In road performance and value the car is first rate and has a sturdiness which should keep it in service for years.

The engine is better than that of the seven unit. With side valves it is unusually quiet, smooth and flexible, and is an excellent hill climber for its size. On top gear it will drive the car at a walking pace in traffic, and at 55 m.p.h. in

FRENCH PRAISE.

Snipe Pleases Continental Experts.

It is always interesting to hear the views of motoring experts of other countries regarding British cars, and M. Maurice Philippe, the motoring editor of the Paris Journal, who recently published his views on the Humber Snipe, evidently found much to enthuse over. "A leading characteristic of the Snipe," he says, "is the suspension, and the springs and shock absorbers have been very judiciously blended; they are neither too soft, which would be prejudicial to the road holding quality, nor are they too hard, which would be disagreeable from the point of view of comfort. As a matter of fact, I have rarely handled a car which gives as much security on the road, especially when one enjoys such excellent suspension."

M. Philippe states that he formed the same favourable opinion with regard to the choice of top gear ratio. "It is such that on my chosen route, although the roads constantly present difficult conditions, they can be negotiated without the necessity to change speed, except, of course, for unforeseen incidents such as traffic stops. In spite of this the engine does not turn over too fast at high speeds. The brakes are excellent at 70 km. an hour; the car pulls up in 24 metres, which is really remarkable."

"The acceleration allows the car to attain 60 km. an hour from a standing start in 14 seconds, using the first three speeds, and it attains 70 km. an hour in 20 seconds using all four gears. I consider this performance extremely good."

Coming from an expert who is used to handling cars specially intended for the excellent roads of France, his remarks are no small meed of praise for the famous Snipe.

the open country. I liked it best at 40 m.p.h. and its acceleration on top from 10 m.p.h. to that speed is brisk.

Steering and braking are good. Mechanical accessibility is on a high level and oil bushes are used wherever possible to reduce the need of attention. Fuel consumption it was impossible to check, but I should say that 32 m.p.g. would be about right with the car driven in an average way.

Other commendable points are the placing of the petrol tank at the rear; accessibility of the batteries, and an under-bonnet locked for the tools. Altogether the Austin is a durable, well thought-out job.

THE NEW AUSTIN TEN-FOUR.

An Attractive Model Well Received.

The advent of a new Austin model inspires the greatest interest in the motoring world, for the designing genius of Sir Herbert Austin invariably produces a car of considerable appeal and outstanding capabilities.

The new Ten-Four, which now makes its appearance, has been introduced to meet a very definite demand, yet it cannot be said to follow the orthodox conception of the majority of cars of this particular horse-power range.

Though there is nothing freakish about the design of the newcomer, the car has individuality and no greater compliment could be paid than to say that it is a product worthy of the Austin tradition for sound engineering.

The design is clean, definitely practical, and obviously the outcome of many years experience in the manufacturing of small and light cars.

The car is of low build, and at even a first glance, one of its most outstanding qualities, namely road stability, stands revealed. Due to its low weight of 16½ cwt., it possesses a power-to-weight ratio favourable enough to ensure a most satisfying performance. In every way it is a car to captivate, sturdy, yet lively, and supremely comfortable under all conditions.

The four-cylinder engine which has a bore and stroke of 2.5 in. x 3.5 in. (or 63.5 x 89 mm.), giving a cubic capacity of 1,125 c.c., with an R.A.C. rating of 10 h.p., is notable for its compactness, accessibility of the important auxiliary units, and the unique method by which it is suspended.

The engine suspension utilises silent bloc bushes at three points to accommodate movement and absorb vibration. The crankcase is integral with the cylinder block, a design which provides exceptional strength and rigidity.

The extremely sturdy crankshaft and camshaft rotate in three bearings, exceptionally large for an engine of this rating, and benefit to the full by the rigidity of the crankcase.

Last engine performance is thus ensured. Power is well maintained, even at the lowest speeds, and the 21 b.h.p. available is responsible for the car's high road performance.

Special alloy pistons, forced feed lubrication, and a detachable head are other important features, typical of Austin practice.

The fuel feed is by pump from a six gallon tank at the rear of the car and a Zenith horizontal carburettor of new design is fitted.

The inlet and exhaust manifold are cast as one unit, thereby giving an even distribution of heat to the incoming fuel.

Ignition is by battery, coil and distributor, all of which are mounted in most get-at-able positions, the distributor being located on the off-side of the engine, and the battery in a special container in front of the dash. With this layout, wiring is simplified, and battery care—especially important with coil ignition—is robbed of all inconvenience.

The dynamo, together with the fan is mounted in a special adjustable bracket above the engine, and the starter motor is incorporated forward of the flywheel housing.

The thermo-siphon cooling system ensures a constant engine temperature with an adequate cooling reserve for exceptional conditions.

Power is transmitted by a single-plate clutch of large engagement area, to a four-speed, twin-top gearbox, with doublehelical constant mesh gears. The ratios selected to enable full advantage to be taken of the engine performance, are 5.25, 8, 12.8 and 20.7 to 1. The gearbox is silent and changing is simple. The speedometer drive is incorporated and a combined oil filler and level indicator simplifies oil replenishments.

The open propeller shaft has all-metal joints, the complete assembly being carefully balanced.

The rear axle has three-quarter floating drive shafts which are thus only called upon to take torsional load. The drive is by spiral bevel pinion and crown wheel, accurately meshed to ensure complete silence. A compact bevel pinion differential is included. Provision is made for lubricating the axle and universal joints from inside the car.

For a car so light in weight and moderate in horse-power rating, the frame is remarkably sturdy. It is wide and downswop with a 24 in. drop behind the engine. This provides a low centre of gravity. Actually, the floor level is only 14 ins. above the ground when the car is fully loaded. The splendid road holding quantities of the car at all speeds testify to the value of this.

As in the Twelve-Six the long semi-elliptic springs are shackled directly under the frame and silentbloc bushes are fitted throughout. Silentbloc shock absorbers are also fitted.

It is no secret that the success of this suspension system is largely due to the load distribution which eliminates overhang.

The brakes, of the mechanical two-shoe type, easily applied, are of the most car and give smooth and rapid retardation. They have a convenient singlepoint adjustment.

Following previous Austin practice, greasing points are few, zinc bushes being used on all bearings of the braking system. Thus, apart from the universal joints, there are only seven nipples, all of which are easy of access at the front of the car.

This consideration for easy maintenance is apparent also in the body design. The absence of extraneous fittings, and the uninterrupted surfaces, make washing and polishing an easy task.

The coachbuilt body has an eddy-free front, exceptionally wide doors and four windows. The last were adopted in preference to six windows, as such a design curtails door width.

Ingress and egress are thus remarkably easy and are further facilitated by the fact that there is no valance nor wells, the floor line being practically on a level with the running boards. This feature also makes for easy cleaning of the interior. The doors close on the centre pillars and are fitted with locks.

Visibility is exceptionally good, the one piece windscreen and slender corner pillars giving the maximum of view. A very neat dashboard in polished wood carries a full set of instruments in front of the driver and allows of an exceptionally large cubby hole opposite the passenger.

The instruments include clock, speedometer, ammeter, switch board, petrol gauge, oil pressure gauge, starting switch and carburettor slow running starting control. An electric windscreen wiper is built into the head above the wind screen, the rear view mirror being adjacent.

The steering, which is light to operate, is of the worm and wheel type. The steering wheel is of convenient size (16 ins.) and the angle of rake gives a comfortable driving position. In the centre of the wheel are the dipping beam control and electric horn button, and a lamp mounted on the column illuminates the instruments.

The control pedals are of ample size and the accelerator is placed on the extreme right. The long gear change lever is positioned centrally convenient for the hand. The brake lever is equally handy and operates the brakes on all four wheels.

All windows are of Triplex glass and are controlled by quicklift mechanism. The sliding roof, easily operated by the driver, affords a wide aperture when open and is completely weatherproof when closed.

NEW NASH

Silent, long-lived Underlining Worm Drive lowers center of gravity without decreasing load room or road clearance.

All Coupe and Sedan have new roller, sliding type front seat adjustment.

Nash X-Dual Twist-Proof Frame

"Centrifuge" cast iron brake drums assure smooth, effective braking and trouble-free service.

Twin Ventilation engine in the Special X, Ambassador 8 are of same type as used in fastest airplanes.

The Strongest Backbone Any Car Ever Had

At first motor cars had just frames. Then came the double-drop frame. Next truss frames. Then X-frames.

Now Nash steps out ahead with the new X-Dual frame—a super-durable, super-rigid and twist-proof type.

Look it over carefully when you come to our showrooms to see the new models.

For this X-Dual frame is new—and different—the strongest frame ever built. The massive inside bridge-girders extend clear from the front cross-member to the rear kick-up—virtually a double frame.

Everyone interested in motor cars should surely see this new Nash X-Dual frame—and then arrange to actually drive this car.

For this frame is just one of a long list of new principles of basic design that make the new Nash so remarkably different in performance.

The "500,000 mile" Silent Underslung Worm Drive axle is another new Nash feature. Full Range Ride Control, adjustable at the dash; Centrifuge Brake Drums; Bohalite Aluminum Alloy Pistons and Connecting Rods; Slip-Stream body design, with Beaver-tail back; Dual Exhaust Silencers are among the many further interesting new attractions.

All models are longer, lower, with faster acceleration, and greater power and speed.

RAND MOTOR SHOW.

Successful Exhibition at Johannesburg.

BRITISH ENTRIES.

This year's Rand Motor Show was, from an exhibition point of view, one of the best held in South Africa; the exhibits were well displayed and looked very attractive.

Owing, however, to the present economic state of South Africa, the attendance was poor as compared to previous years. With anything like reasonable general conditions prevailing in the near future, the car trade is assured of increasing sales volume.

The Hillman Minx was one of the great attractions, and the stand on which the three models were displayed created more interest than any other at the Show. A number of definite orders were booked, and the sales staff of British Motors (distributors for Hillman Cars) appeared to be most cheerful and energetic. They certainly had reason to be.

The Humbers shown by Messrs. Gee and MacGill were tastefully arranged, and were the most dignified of all the exhibits. The models comprised the Pullman Limousine, Snipe Saloon, Sports Saloon and Snipe Drophead Coupe. This was the first occasion on which the Pullman model was shown in South Africa, and the manner in which it was generally appraised gladdened the hearts of the agents. Very good prospects are reported and a number of demonstration runs were arranged.

British vehicles predominated for the first time in the history of the Rand Show. This is an excellent omen, and indicates clearly that dealers have sufficient confidence in British motor products to-day to warrant the expenditure involved in displaying them in this manner.

ROUGH WORK.

Exploring with Thornycroft Vehicles.

Another exploration tour of the Kalahari Desert has been successfully completed by a party of prominent officials connected with the Rhodesian Railways, using three Thornycroft six-wheelers.

A previous trip of a Thornycroft vehicle having successfully yielded encouraging results, this second expedition was a more ambitious project, using three vehicles to avoid the drastic overloading to which the previous solitary Thornycroft had been subjected.

Approximately 1,200 miles of desert country was traversed, which included several extensive detours beyond the track followed on the previous trip. The object was to make further surveys for the proposed railway to Walvis Bay and to investigate the Kalahari country, which is believed to hold immense possibilities for agricultural developments, if assisted with modern irrigation such as to convert this barren expanse of South Africa into a second Egypt.

Although this second trip was more quickly and successfully achieved, it was a hazardous one for all concerned, requiring implicit confidence in the reliability of the Thornycroft trio of six-wheelers crossing country which at one stage was waterless for nearly 150 miles, and at most other parts water was available only at depths of 15 feet. None of the vehicles lost any appreciable quantities of water in spite of the almost tropical temperature and exceedingly heavy going, and proved equally economical on fuel and oil, their good behaviour being admirably supported by their Dunlop low pressure tyres, which held out without a single puncture throughout.

What a striking contrast this tour makes to the explorations of half a century ago, necessitating a young army of native attendants to maintain supplies over the many months or even years that were then required.

The Hammermith corner, commenting on the use of motor horns, said that motorists would be nothing less than a nuisance if they sounded their hooters every time they passed another vehicle.

THE NEW AUSTIN TEN-FOUR.

The base of both the adjustable front seats which, equally with the back, are roomy and deeply upholstered, is so constructed as to provide additional foot room for the rear seat passenger. The wide rear seat allows plenty of head room.

The interior and exterior finish is of a quality rarely found in a car of this price and size, and is well in keeping with the high standard of Austin workmanship. The spare wheel is mounted between the body and the extremely neat folding luggage grid, and is supported in the apron which embodies the rear number plate and carries the stop-light.

The front and side views of this car are equally pleasing. The cleverly proportioned lines combined with the modified radiator contour, the sweeping wings, wire wheels, neat bumpers, plated head-lamp rings and high grade finish, certainly establish a new standard of small car elegance.

A car of low price, high quality, workmanlike in every detail and obviously capable of upholding the family tradition of dependability—this is the Austin Ten-Four.

FUNERAL CEREMONY
FOR MR. E. R. DOVEY

The remains of the late Mr. E. R. Dovey were conveyed to the Happy Valley cemetery yesterday evening, and placed in the Protestant Chapel, where Rev. E. G. Powell, assisted by Rev. Frank Short, conducted a short service.

Rev. Powell, prior to the service, said that a message had been received from Mr. Dovey's parents, requesting that the body be embalmed and sent to Sydney, Australia. The remains would therefore be left overnight in the chapel and later embalmed.

GUIDE MOVEMENT

MRS. W. T. SOUTHERN'S
ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Mrs. W. T. Southern writes to the Editor of the S. C. M. Post as follows:

I should be greatly obliged if you would kindly find room in your columns for an acknowledgment of all the kindness that the Guide Movement has received with regard to the funds for Guide Headquarters (The Sandilands Hut). Friends of all nationalities have contributed with a readiness that has given the greatest pleasure to all concerned with the Guide Movement.

Mr. Tang Shu-kin has sent $5,000 contributed by himself and his friends. This is a magnificent help towards the amount we require. We thank most warmly each of the generous donors, and in particular Mr. Tang Shu-kin, who inspired this splendid gift.

We are greatly indebted to the Jockey Club for a very generous donation of $500.

We owe a tremendous debt of gratitude to Mrs. J. B. Newell, and to the Committee and Members of the Club Lusitano, who raised the sum of $2,657 by means of a Bridge and Mah Jong drive and rallies at the Club Lusitano on May 27th. The show was admirably organised by Mrs. Newell and her helpers, and proved a great success both socially and financially.

We are also greatly indebted to Mr. Komor for much valuable help in various ways and for allowing us in conjunction with "The Athena Company" to exhibit the raffle prizes in the show window. The following friends greatly assisted us by donations, sale of raffle, bridge and mah jong tickets, and in other ways:

The Rev. G. T. Walbridge, The Hon. Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Perry, Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Pope, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Tetley, Mrs. H. M. Mackenzie, Mr. W. W. Mackenzie, Engineer Commander and Mrs. P. H. Carlar, Inspector and Mrs. E. A. Marks, Miss Dennington, Miss J. A. Davies, Matron Kwoon Hospital, Mr. J. A. Fraser, Mr. D. F. Hill, Chief Inspector P. Grant, Hon. Mr. R. H. Officers and Brethren, University Lodge, and Mr. M. G. and Mrs. O'Connor.

Mr. Hampden Ross audited the accounts for us, and we thank him very much for this kindness.

Mrs. J. H. Hunt and the members of the ladies' section of the Y.M.C.A. most kindly gave a very successful bridge and mah jong drive in aid of the Hut equipment, and realised the welcome sum of $176. Everyone enjoyed the afternoon thoroughly, and we are most grateful for this help.

We have had promises of assistance in furnishing the Hut from Mrs. R. H. Kotewall, who takes an unflinching interest in our Guide work, and Mrs. Sidney Woolf (London).

The estimated cost of the building is $8,500, and we hope to have shortly an estimate for the furnishing and equipment of the Hut, for which it may be necessary to raise additional funds.

We are most grateful for all the gifts we have received.

LOCAL SHIPPING
ORDINANCESLAW BEING WIDELY AMENDED

The Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend the Merchant Shipping Ordinance, 1899.

The object of this Ordinance is to make such amendments in the Merchant Shipping Ordinances of the Colony as are considered desirable before the Ordinances are consolidated.

There is reason to believe that in some cases the certificated master, who must be provided under section 4 (2) of the principal Ordinance, in the case of every British ship and every foreign ship holding a passenger certificate under section 10, is carried because the Ordinance requires it, but is either encouraged by the owners, charterers, agents or commanders to leave the control of the ship to uncertificated persons or is liable to dismissal if he interferes with such control.

Sections 5 and 6 of this Ordinance therefore amend section 10 of the principal Ordinance by making the issue of passenger certificates discretionary and also by making such certificates revocable in any case where the Governor has reason to believe that the certificated master of the ship is not permitted to exercise proper control of the ship.

Section 15 adds oil to the list of substances which may not be cast upon the waters.

Section 23 retracts section 17 (15) of the principal Ordinance, so as to bring all launches and motor boats under the collision regulations and so as to enable the Harbour Master to deal with all local certificates of competency issued to masters and engineers of launches and motor boats.

There are many other proposed changes, including increased penalties for various offences.

both large and small, and we are hoping that it may be possible to provide an endowment fund eventually, as there will be annual expenses of upkeep, coal, etc. It is delightful to get gifts from the Guide and Brownie Companies, and to realise that the sale of Guide and Brownie work at the Empire Day Rally at Government House realised $203. This was entirely the handiwork of the children, so that they have already contributed to their future home.

We cannot give adequate thanks to General Sandilands, and to Colonel Marsden and the Royal Engineers, who are helping us in every way. We hope that it may be possible for General Sandilands to open the Hut some time in August, and we trust that it will be a pleasant meeting place for all members of the Guide Movement, and a centre of happiness for the Guides and Brownies.

Any information regarding the Guide Movement, or offers of assistance in Guide work, or for the Hut, should be addressed to Mrs. C. E. L. Grist, 524 The Peak.

Yours faithfully,
BELLA SOUTHERN.

AIR MAIL TO U. K.

HONGKONG CHAMBER'S
ENQUIRIES

From the Secretary of the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce has been obtained an interesting summary of the correspondence passing recently between the Chamber and the Government, in connection with the question of air mail services between the Colony and elsewhere. It should prove of much interest to the public.

In December last the Chamber of Commerce discussed the question of a possible alternative fast route for letters in the event of interference with mail services to and from Europe via Siberia.

The Government was written to requesting that enquiries be made as to schedule, time of transmission and cost of possible alternatives, etc., by the various air mail routes by which letters are received and forwarded in the Straits Settlements.

The Chamber of Commerce also forwarded to Government a copy of the Straits Settlements Post Office pro forma time table giving details of air mail services at present existing.

The Postmaster General, Hongkong, also obtained details of air mail services from the Director General of Posts at Bandoeng and the Federated Malay States Director of Posts and Telegraphs.

The Dutch Service.

The only air mail service with which it appears feasible at the moment for Hongkong mails to connect is the weekly service via Singapore and Alor Star, Hongkong mails to London connecting with this service. It is claimed, would take at least 16 or 17 days—a saving of four or five days only compared with the route from Hongkong via Siberia. (Later, however, there has been some speeding up on this route.)

The Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, in view of the small saving of time effected, an air mail service is not likely to attract much support so long as the Siberian route is working normally, particularly in view of the large additional charge which would have to be made.

It is understood, however, that arrangements are being made whereby an air mail service will operate immediately in the event of the Siberian route being interrupted.

If and when a direct air service between Hongkong and Bangkok or Saigon becomes an established fact, air mails will no doubt be carried, the reduction in time to be thus effected putting the question on a different basis.

YORKSHIRE WIN BY INNINGS: ELEVEN WICKETS FOR AMAR SINGH

MIDDLESEX IN AN EXCITING FINISH

YORKSHIRE RECOVERED the form which has won for them the county championship so consistently during the past few years, when they defeated Gloucester by an innings and 95 runs. Bowes, the "Tykes" trundler, played havoc with the Gloucester batsmen, taking ten wickets during the match.

Amar Singh accomplished an outstanding bowling achievement for the Indians against Cambridge, securing eleven victims in two innings, and a further performance with the leather was given by Hardinge, the Kent veteran, who bagged seven M.C.C. wickets for '64 runs.

Among the batsmen, the Nawab of Patnudi stood out with two splendid innings, whilst R. E. S. Wyatt played brilliantly in an endeavour to snatch a victory for Warwick against Middlesex. An exciting finish found Warwick 23 runs behind with one wicket in hand when stumps were drawn.

County Championship

Yorkshire beat Gloucester at Bristol by an innings and 95 runs.
Surrey beat Derbyshire at the Oval by 199 runs.
Lancashire beat Hampshire at Manchester on 1st innings.
Northants beat Essex at Northampton on 1st innings.
Warwickshire beat Middlesex at Birmingham on 1st innings.

Friendlies

All-India beat Cambridge at Cambridge by 9 wickets.
Kent beat M.C.C. at Lord's by 10 wickets.

GLOUCESTER TROUNCED

Yorkshire Secure Runaway Victory

Gloucester found Bowes in such deadly form with the ball when they entertained Yorkshire at Bristol, that they were completely outplayed and lost by an innings and 95.

The home attack presented no terrors to Yorkshire, who put together the vast total of 418. Mitchell batting magnificently for his 140.

Gloucester's first response to this was a meagre 173. Bowes creating all the trouble by taking 5 wickets for 49 runs, and when the home side followed on he continued the good work, secured a further five victims at a cost of 56 runs, and helped to skittle Gloucester out for an additional 150 runs.

SURREY ON TOP

Win Points Comfortably from Derby

Surrey were on top from start to finish in their encounter with Derbyshire and eventually ran out comfortable winners by 199 runs.

Batting first, they put together the respectable score of 315, to which Derby could only reply with 168. Forcing the game, Surrey scored a further 207 for 9 wickets and declared, to enable them to dispose of Derby a second time for 155.

INDIANS' NEW VICTIMS

Amar Singh's Wonderful Bowling

There was plenty of fine cricket seen at Fenners when All-India met Cambridge and ran out easy winners by 9 wickets.

Amar Singh, the visitor's stock bowler was in remarkable form, taking 11 wickets during the match for a paltry 100 runs.

E. Ratcliffe was the outstanding figure in the Cambridge side, his second innings century being a fine achievement against a clever and well directed attack.

Cambridge were skittled out for 92 in their first knock, Amar Singh taking half the wickets for six runs each, and the Indians replied with 308. S.H.M. Colah batting well for his 96. Cambridge staged a recovery, and with Ratcliffe remaining unbeaten with 112 to his credit, the second innings realised 274. The visitors secured the required 59 for the loss of one wicket.

HARDINGE 7 for 64

Nawab of Patnudi Also Bats Brightly

A howling achievement by the veteran Kent all-rounder, Walter Hardinge, and excellent batting by the Nawab of Patnudi and Frank Woolley provided the bright features of the Kent v. M.C.C. match at Lord's, where the county team won by 10 wickets.

The Marylebone Club compiled 285 at the first time of asking, Patnudi carrying his bat for 84, and Hardinge taking 7 wickets for 64 runs.

Kent amassed the huge score of 481. Woolley just missing the three-figure mark by three runs.

Patnudi again batted with confidence and ability when the M.C.C. strove to avert the innings defeat, and thanks to his 73 this was accomplished, but Kent had only to score 23 to win, which they did without loss.

KEEN ENCOUNTER

Lancashire Snatch First Innings Points

As a result of leading by 11 runs on the first innings, Lancashire secured the points against Hampshire.

The Northern side put together 283, Herman bowling well to secure 6 wickets for 83 runs. Hampshire responded with 272, and then Lancashire indulged in some free hitting, scoring 215 for 2 wickets before applying the closure. The end came with Hants second innings score standing at 21 for 2.

TIME FACTOR

Prevents Full Decision in Essex v. Northants Match.

Northants had to be content with first innings points against Essex after having the better of the game.

Their first knock realised 259, Essex being 30 runs in arrears. Timms batted well in Northants second innings scoring 97 out of a total of 284 for 9 declared. Essex had 136 runs on the board for the loss of three wickets when play stopped.

WYATT AND HAIG

Bat Well for Middlesex and Warwick.

An exciting finish, in which time played the chief part, featured the match between Middlesex and Warwick, which the latter team won on the first innings.

When stumps were drawn Warwick needed 24 to win and had one wicket outstanding, with R.E.S. Wyatt batting confidently having 103 to his credit.

Middlesex did poorly in their first innings scoring but 184, and Warwick easily passed this, putting together 261. Croom being the star batsman with 90 to his credit.

The London team recovered strongly and amassed 377 at the second time of asking, Nigel Haig contributing 90.

R.E.S. Wyatt gave a typical demonstration of fine fighting cricket when Warwick endeavoured to secure the runs to win, and at the drawing of stumps was undefeated with 103 to his name. Reuter.

RATHER GLOOMY PROSPECTS

[By "Ringtail."]

The last race meeting in the first half of the present season will be conducted at Happy Valley this afternoon when the "Eighth Extra" is down for decision.

At the time of writing the prospects appear rather gloomy as the rain which fell overnight will not tend to improve the condition of the track which has had several severe soakings during the week-end. It is certain to be sticky which will have the effect of slowing down the times.

There is no very important race on the programme, although some of the finishes will be close in the handicap events of which the card mostly consists.

MAN HUNTERS

Claude Bloch nothing had been said about that devil machine, the letter press! What the girl did not know was that this invention was an anachronism in the smart and up-to-date office of Ernest Henth. His father had had letter press and therefore he must have one.

Susan struggled with the monster. She put her whole weight upon the turn of the mammoth iron screw and then timorously slid the book out to survey results.

As she had feared, the cloth had been a shade too damp. The original letter was blurred beyond recognition. After one dour look at it the lugubrious Mr. Pierson, shaking his head with a sorrow too profound for words, turned back to his high stool and his ledgers.

Thus abandoned, Susan began ignominiously to cry. No sound escaped her but the great tears rolled quietly down her cheeks. "Hateful, hateful thing!" she addressed the letter press, in her heart. "You've lost me—my job."

No one heeded her. Pierson disappeared into his refuge, the vault, as though washing his hands of a pupil so inept. Just then Susan heard the office door open.

Ashamed to be caught thus, frightened beyond belief thinking Mr. Henth had returned and would at once discharge her, Susan turned to flee.

She heard an unfamiliar voice say, "What's going on here? Pretty girl crying? Then I'm arriving just in time."

The newcomer was a sandy-haired, ruddy-faced man of 30 odd who wore a faultless grey suit and pearl coloured spats. He threw his hat on a vacant desk and advanced toward Susan ovally.

"Is this the pretty new secretary? What's up? I'm Jack Waring."

Chicago Cubs Stage A Battle Royal

New York, June 10.

Prayed tempers gave rise to an unpleasant scene at Brooklyn today when Herman and Jurgess, of the Chicago Cubs, staged a battle royal by attacking Flinn on second base. The Chicago players were being defeated and with the struggle for leadership in the National so keen did not relish the fact.

At Cleveland, in the American, where Philadelphia's Athletics outbait the Cleveland walllopers, Coleman fractured his left ankle in sliding into the plate. Cochrane and Simmons hit home runs for the Athletics.

The Yankees made it three out of four against Detroit, again by the narrowest possible margin. Schulte hit two home runs and Lou Gehrig smacked out his eleventh.

Paul Waner made a home run for the Phillies and Hemsley scored for Brooklyn.

Bleuse hit for the circuit at Chicago where Washington put the honey on their opponents, blanking them and pounding their pitchers for ten runs.

DRAGON BOAT MISHAPS

MANY LIVES LOST AT CANTON

Canton June 10. The Dragon Boat Festival has been marred by considerable loss of life.

On Wednesday, one of the boats belonging to Taishek village overturned on the way to Pak Fah Bay, Honam Island, to take part in the race. By good fortune, however, the accident occurred just off the Tachungkwong in the western part of the island, and several sampans from among the many lying there rushed to the assistance of the crew, numbering about 70 men. They managed to rescue all except 19. The boat and bodies of the men they were unable to save were salvaged yesterday.

A similar but even more tragic accident occurred on Tuesday near the eastern entrance of the Canton harbor, when a dragon boat from Pan Kiu village going to Sze-tou-chung was capsized by a backwash caused by a steamer on its trip to Hongkong. In spite of the assistance afforded by the villagers, the entire crew perished except seven men. This matter has been reported to the Navigation Association. Our Own Correspondent.

thirty-eight per cent., those of the United States and Germany by thirty-six per cent. each, while the exports of the United Kingdom had fallen by only about six per cent.

OTHER CONTRASTS.

In volume, the percentage fall in imports to the United Kingdom in the past three months of the current year was nil, whereas in the United States it was four per cent., and in Germany twelve per cent. With regard to the fall in the volume of exports, Germany had suffered a twenty-one per cent. drop, the United States sixteen per cent., and Britain less than one per cent. Had it not been for coal, they would have shown an increase.

The export of manufactured goods in the first quarter was higher than in the first quarter last year.

It was true that while Britain gets a larger share, world trade as a whole was continually diminishing, illustrating the fact that no single country could prosper when the rest of the world was depressed, but the fact that the world depression had been widening and deepening had brought home to every people a sense of the difficult situation.

"Next week we enter upon the Lausanne Conference at which every endeavour will be made to reach an agreement with the countries directly concerned with the solution of these difficulties, and I hope it will bring results. The result may prove to be the turning point in the history of Europe in these difficult days."

COLONY'S CREDIT BALANCE

SLIGHT ADVANCE IN FEBRUARY

The Colony's credit balance at the end of February was $12,572,713, which is a slight advance on the figure for the end of January, when the balance was $12,318,986.

Revenue for February totalled $2,427,084, as compared with $2,456,435 for the same month last year. For the first two months of the year, the total revenue was $5,720,108, as against $5,183,300 in 1931.

Expenditure, during February was $2,173,357, against $2,028,304 last year, the respective figures for the two months being $4,395,024 and $4,069,027.

a reduction of national expenditure had been reached. The main items of expenditure were of a size that would warrant the belief that substantial reductions could be made, however involved were the matters of vital importance either the country or to standards of living, but if the Government felt that changes regarding them were necessary, they would not flinch from telling the House and the country.

On the whole, they had no cause for anxiety. On the contrary, he believed it necessary carefully to watch the situation and lose no opportunity of reducing national expenditure where that could properly be done. The Government had already taken measures which had prepared the way for a rapid advance.—British Wireless.
